

The WorldFish Center works with partners to reduce poverty and hunger by developing science-based solutions necessary for:

- Expanding sustainable aquaculture and
- Ensuring productive and resilient small-scale fisheries

The Center's work helps achieve the targets laid down by the United Nations in the Millennium Development Goals. Our work contributes to the understanding of climate change and the alleviation of its effects. A focus on gender equity underpins everything we do. We develop "international public goods" with global applications.

We organize our work agenda according to six regional portfolios: East & Southeast Asia, South Asia, Greater Mekong Sub-region, Southern and Eastern Africa, West and Central Africa, and South Pacific. Strong scientific capacities are ensured in three disciplinary programs: Policy, Economics, and Social Sciences; Natural Resource Management; and Aquaculture and Genetic Improvement.

We have over 250 staff, including 50 Ph.D. scientists based in twelve countries across Asia, Africa and the South Pacific. From these bases we work in more than 25 countries with more than 200 partners.

WorldFish is one of 15 international agricultural centers funded and supported primarily by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR), a strategic alliance of governments, development banks, philanthropic organizations and private foundations.

An assessment of impact shows that every $100 invested in work undertaken by The WorldFish Center and partners results in $134 worth of benefits to the poor, annually.
